Parent Content Index Video II: Conditional this printable mixed conditional worksheet activity is based on an Ezop's Fables story. On the worksheet, students use the first, second, and third conditionals for matching, reading, discussion, and writing activities. Give each student a copy of the two-page worksheet. Students working alone are sning the sentence in two about the story. After that, students write whether each sentence is first, second, or third conditional, and then use mixed conditional sentences to write the order in which they think the events occurred. Later, with a partner, students discuss what they know about the story from sentences. The students then read the story to find out if their ideas were correct. After reading the story, students return to Exercise A and, if necessary, review the order of sentences. Students then write a possible morality for the story. Later, students imagine that this is 10 years later, and each of their sons owns half the farm. The students then took first place about their two sons, and writes a third conditional sentence. Finally, review students' sentences together as a class. Here's how to make a worksheet on a useful sentence mixed type of conditional symquins.
